

Can I drive from Cancun to Xcalak and get to San Pedro from there?

Article Number: 142 | Rating: Unrated | Last Updated: Wed, Dec 6, 2006 11:59 PM

Drive south on the coast road Highway 307. (Be sure to fill your tank in Carrillo Puerto!). There is now a new PEMEX station, just east of the Xcalak turnoff.

Pass through the village of Limones, about 1 mile, and turn left at the Majahual turn off sign (this is a brand new paved, big road).

Drive south about 55 kilometers to the junction just west of Majahual. Turn right. THERE ARE NEW SIGNS MARKING THE TURN OFF TO XCALAK. [This is a new and paved road, may not be in the travel guides yet.]

Drive south about 55 kilometers to the end of the road. Turn left at the junction and follow the road through the town of Xcalak. (The road will bend left near the football/soccer fields.) Continue heading north out of town and over a bridge. The road parallels the shore. In about 2 kilometers you will arrive at Costa de Cocos on the right.

The trip will take approximately 4 - 4.5 hours.

There is a boat shuttle to San Pedro Belize from the dock of Costa de Cocos

Price is $195.00 USD for the boat, up to 6 passengers. Price does not include customs or immigration fees.

Posted : Marty Casado - Wed, Dec 6, 2006 11:59 PM. This article has been viewed 16264 times.

Online URL: <https://ambergriscaye.com/help/article.php?id=142>